Fall Celebration at the Johnston Farm

We all know that the National Road is just to our south, and many of us know about the Dixie Highway, the Lincoln Highway, and the Maysville Pike. How many of us knew that US Route 36 was part of a proposed coast to coast highway? On Saturday, October 5 author Allan Ferguson will be at the Johnston Farm to share the history of US 36. He will be in the museum at 1:30 PM to share the story of little known part of our local history.

This is also the day we celebrate many things Autumn. There will be canal boat rides, smores, music, and a variety of demonstrations and activities for the family to enjoy during an early fall afternoon. New for 2019 will be an exhibit of antique tractors.

In the summer kitchen area, once again the many uses of the paw paw will be a feature of the afternoon.

Join the staff and volunteers of the Johnston Farm & Indian Agency for this special Fall Celebration and take part in activities that will carry you back to an earlier time in Ohio. Take time to tour the historic Johnston Home, visit the Indian and Canal Museum, take a ride on the General Harrison of Piqua, and learn more about the Pike's Peak Coast to Coast Highway.

The Johnston Farm & Indian Agency is located 2.5 miles north of Piqua, Ohio just off SR 66 at 9845 N Hardin Road. Admission for this event is $9.00/adults, $4.00/students 6-12, free to visitors 5 and under plus Johnston Farm Friends and Ohio History Connection members. AAA and Senior discounts are also honored.
